GHANA 2020 ELECTIONS:

MONITORING OF INDECENT LANGUAGE ON RADIO

JUNE 2020 – JANUARY 2021

Supported by: OSIWA & STAR GHANA FOUNDATION with thanks to: UKaid Funded by the European Union USAID FROM THE AMERICAN PEOPLE CDD-GHANA

1.0 Introduction

During elections, the media especially radio, become critical and effective platforms for public access to information, awareness creation, facilitating public debates and discussions in Ghana. The electorate look up to the media for information on the various political parties, their vision, policies, ideologies and what they seek to do for the masses. Political parties, their activists, affiliates and assigns in reaching out to the masses with their messages, also often resort to the use of radio as it remains the most effective citizens' engagement platform in Ghana. It is thus imperative that the media's role be carried out with strict adherence to professionalism and ethical standards.

Unfortunately, debates or discussions among political party activists, communicators or supporters on media platforms have often been characterised by the high preference for vitriolic language often manifested in character assassinations, unsubstantiated allegations, unwarranted provocation and defamation, among others. Interestingly, even in the midst of the COVID-19 pandemic, public discourse around the disease and other current affairs/political debates particularly on radio continued to be characterised by abusive expressions.

To help focus public discourse on radio in the 2020 electioneering period on issues and not personality attacks and other forms of vitriolic expressions, the Media Foundation for West Africa (MFWA), in June 2020 commenced its project titled Promoting Decent Language and Issues-based Campaigning for Peaceful Elections in Ghana in 2020. The project aimed at contributing to peaceful elections through issues-based campaigning devoid of hate speech and indecent expressions before, during and after the 2020 elections.

1.1 Methodology

The project involved daily monitoring of hate speech and abusive language on 60 selected radio stations across the country from the period June 2020 to January 2021. Specifically, the project involved the daily monitoring of expressions used by political activists and other political actors who featured on radio programmes such as news bulletins, political discussions and current affairs discussions. It also monitored how presenters on the target radio stations handled their respective programmes to ensure that indecent expressions were not tolerated on their programmes.

The project was implemented with funding support from the Open Society Initiative for West Africa (OSIWA), STAR Ghana Foundation with funding from UKAID and EU, and USAID through CDD-Ghana. The monitoring was done based on a validated monitoring instrument. Sixty language monitors were recruited (one monitor per station) and trained on the use of the monitoring instrument. Each monitor was assigned a digital recorder for purposes of recording the programmes they monitor. Monitors sent daily reports to the MFWA which were analysed by a team of programme staff and researchers for a consolidated report to be produced and published.

This report covers monitoring of 60 radio stations in Ghana from June 2020 – January, 2021. It specifically cites the number of indecent expressions recorded, the categories of indecent expressions used, names of individuals who made indecent remarks and their political party affiliation. It also names radio stations on which indecent expressions were made, as well as the conduct of the programme hosts/presenters.

Below are the 60 radio stations monitored under the project.

2.0 Findings

During the monitoring period (June 2020 - January 2021), a total of 17,280 programmes were monitored on the 60 target radio stations across the country. The programmes monitored included news bulletins, current affairs and political discussion shows. 582 indecent expressions were recorded on all the programmes monitored.

In the first month of montoring – June 2020 – a total of 90 indecent expressions were recorded. However, through MFWA's campaign against the use of indecent expressions on radio and as well naming and shaming individuals who were cited in the monthly reports, the indecent expressions dropped significantly to 19 in January 2021. This accounts for a 79 per cent decline in the use of indecent language on radio over the project period.

2.1 Categories of Indecent Expressions Recorded

The 582 indecent expressions recorded comprised eight types of indecent expressions – Insulting and Offensive comments; Unsubstantiated allegations; Provocative remarks; Expressions Inciting Violence; Threats; Divisive comments; Gender specific Insults; and Expressions containing Prejudice and Bigotry.

2.2 Political Party/ Group Affiliation of Individuals Who Used Indecent Expressions

In all, 175 individuals made the 582 indecent expressions. These individuals featured on the programmes monitored as hosts, discussants, interviewees, texters and callers. 134 out of the 175 individuals were political party officials, supporters and affiliates. The political party affiliation of the remaining 43 individuals who made abusive remarks could not be established. This was mainly because only persons who represent or were introduced as members of a political party are coded against their respective political parties.

The 134 political party officials, supporters and affiliates made 394 indecent expressions out of the 582 recorded (68%). The 43 individuals whose political affiliation could not be established made the remaining 188 (32%).

Officials and affiliates of eight political parties namely the New Patriotic Party (NPP), the National Democratic Congress (NDC), the United Front Party (UFP), the People's Progressive Party (PPP), the Great Consolidated Popular Party (GCPP), the Ghana Freedom Party (GFP), the Liberal Party of Ghana (LPG), and the Convention People's Party (CPP) were cited for the indecent expressions over the project period.

Presented in Table 1 is a breakdown of the categories of indecent expressions used by officials, supporters and affiliates of the political parties and individuals whose affiliation could not be established.

2.4 Key Trends and Observations

Through out the monitoring period, the following observations were made:

1 Majority of Radio stations in Ghana as part of their elections coverage introduce many more political programmes during electioneering periods. However, in between the four-year cyle of general elections in Ghana, some or many of these programmes die off once the elections are over.

2 It was observed that the Pro-partisan stations, especially the radio stations aligned to the two major political parties in Ghana – NPP and NDC - were the most abusive and inciteful in their programming, especially when "their" party is the ruling government.

3 Progressively, a number of moderators made efforts to prevent the use of indecent expressions on their platforms albeit a few who were still adamant.

4 After the elections on December 7, 2020, majority of the political programmes took a different format where either a single political party communicator was allowed on a show or none appeared at all thereby resulting in a reduced incidence of abusive exchanges.

5 Some leading perpetrators of abusive language cited over the monitoring period no longer featured on those shows or were not allowed to engage in the use of indecent expressions when they featured on shows;

6 Some of the abusive radio stations stopped their political programmes completely; while others reduced the frequency of these programmes on their network.

3.0 Conclusion

The language monitoring project served as a measure for decency of communication on radio during the 2020 elections and a measure for media professionalism. The naming and shaming approach served as an effective deterrent for the use of hate speech and pro-violence campaign language on radio by individuals and political parties were minded about their reputation and also their brand.

A trend analyses of the 60 radio stations monitored showed some significant reductions in the use of abusive language, particularly 12 radio stations which recorded high numbers right at the inception of the project in June saw a significant decline at the end of the project. Table 4 below highlights the decline in the frequency of indecent expressions over the period
